SEVENTY OXFORD COUNTY POULTRYMEN ENJOYED TOUR LAST FRIDAY

Seventy poultrymen attended the poultry tour held Friday, August 14 in Oxford County. Poultrymen were present from all parts of the county including Andover, Mexico and Rumford in the extreme Northern end and Hiram and Porter in the extreme Southern end.

The Adult Poultry Clubs of Hiram, Mexico and Norway have sponsored the tour this year as a part of their 1931 program.

Everyone came early and at 9:30 Standard Time the whole crowd was assembled at the farm of Harry M. Goodwin, Norway. An interesting feature of this stop was the semi-circular method of dressing poultry. Richard Tyner, who is doing all the killing and plucking for Mr. Goodwin, has killed and plucked as many as 230 roasters in a day. Mr. Tyner added that this was more than an eight hour day however. Two girls are kept busy putting the final touches on the birds after the rough plucking. Mr. Goodwin then showed the large tank in which the birds are cooled down to remove the body heat. He was also prepared to cool the body heat of his visitors by passing out large glasses of ice-cold gingerale and cigars to those who smoked. This was greatly appreciated for the day was quite warm and sunny.

The next stop was to be at the large farm of D. W. Goodwin & Son just across the road from Harry Goodwin. This farm is also one of Oxford County's leading poultry farms with between six and seven thousand chickens raised this year. Up-to-date and well cared for houses and equipment are most noticeable on these poultry farms. In addition to this large poultry business carried on by D. W. Goodwin & Son they also have a retail milk and cream route. Mr. Goodwin's grandson is planning to enter the University of Maine this fall.

Owing to a shortage of time the tour went directly to the Graydon Farm, South Paris. They were greeted here with the same cordial spirit shown by the Goodwins. The Graydon is doing a large hatchery business and the sameness of incubator and battery brooders were of much interest. Feed hoppers and range shelters were of special interest at this stop.

Dinner was eaten at the farm of Guy Curtis, Norway. This is an efficient one man farm with 600 apple trees, accommodations for 17 cows and about 1400 laying hens.

Following the picnic dinner County Agent Ridley introduced Warren Chadborn explained the aims of the association and officiated in the nominating of a committee to assist in the organization of an Oxford County unit.

The next speaker was H. L. Richardson, Extension Poultry Specialist, who gave an interesting outline of the most recent developments in poultry breeding practices and explained the breeding project which will be undertaken by the Extension Service this coming year.

Alfred J. Dyer's "Red Bird" poultry farm was the first stop after dinner. The folks were taken down on the range and shown the method of range rotation together with the large number of range shelters being used. Mr. Dyer is another of the leading poultrymen in the county and doing a large business.

A jump of twelve miles was made over to the Donelson Brothers, Harrison. They have an accredited flock. Of special interest here were the automatic watering devices which can be used on a common water barrel or attached to a water pipe under pressure. Some good Plymouth Rocks were seen here.

The last stop was at Warren Chadborn's, Bridgton. Although scheduled to be there at 3:15 the tour did not arrive until five o'clock.

In spite of the late hour there were approximately twenty-five who made this stop. Automatic waterers, range shelters, sunflowers for shade and good range were the points of interest here. They have some fine looking Rhode Island Red Pullets laying at the present time. Everyone helped themselves to a tree of ripe yellow transparent apples and went home smiling.

Robert Eldredge and Russell Carrier of New Gloucester are visiting their sister, Mrs. Ralph Berry.

Mrs. John H. Wilson and son of Berlin were in Portland Saturday, returning to Bethel to spend the week-end with relatives.

Miss Alice Brown of Boston, Mass., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown, is spending her vacation on an ocean trip. She sailed from New York Saturday on the France for Bermuda, and will return by way of Halifax.

FOURTY-THREE GATHER AT SMITH FAMILY REUNION

Though skies were gray and a misty rain falling Sunday morning, Aug. 16, 43 members of the Jonathan B. and Triphena Wines Smith family, with two visitors, met at the home of Fred Howard and Mr. and Mrs. Asa Howard for their first reunion as voted at the family get-together held last year on Sept. 4.

The forenoon was spent in exchanging greetings, meeting new members of the family and getting acquainted. The sun came out and scattered the clouds away before noon so that long tables were set up on the lawn where a picnic lunch was enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Asa Howard furnished coffee and lemonade.

After the lunch the President, Frederick B. Smith of Augusta, opened the business meeting with a few well chosen words, expressing his pleasure that so many were present on this beautiful day, his sorrow that one who was here last year had joined the heavenly family, and asked all to join in repeating the Lord's Prayer.

The Secretary, Mrs. S. E. Coffin, gave a report of the meeting last year. The following officers were elected:

President—Frederick B. Smith, Augusta.
Vice-President—Mrs. Paulina Enman, Rumford.
Secretary—Mrs. S. E. Coffin, North Paris.

The officers are to be a committee of arrangements for the next meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Asa Howard expressed their wish that they meet with them next year. Mrs. Earl Davis, Bethel; Mrs. Everett Smith, Turner Center; Mrs. Duncan McPherson, Newry; and Mrs. Ralph Lowell, Rumford, were chosen program committee for next year.

The following program was given by the committee chosen last year:

Music, Smith's Orchestra
Recitation, Carlos Smith
Dance in Costume, Virginia Davis
Saxophone duet, Elaine and Stanley Smith
Song, June Enman
Recitation, Josephine Smith
Music, Smith's Orchestra
Chorus singing, Enman family
Song, Everett Enman
Music, Smith's Orchestra

The program was excellent and we feel proud in having so much talent in the family. Special mention must be made of the music furnished by the Smith Orchestra which is composed of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Smith and three children of Turner Center.

Mrs. Smith, piano; Mr. Smith, violin; Stanley, age 11, drum and bells; Elaine, age 9, saxophone, and Alden, age 8, alto horn, which seemed wonderful for children of their age, also the dance in costume by Virginia Davis, which for room had to be done on the lawn. She has a future ahead.

Many pictures were taken after the program of different groups and the little new member, Jerrold Neal Davis, who came June 29, who was the youngest present and Mrs. Martha E. Martin, age 77, the oldest.

Those present were:
Mr. and Mrs. Freeborn B. Smith, Mrs. Caroline B. Lovejoy, Augusta.
Mrs. Martha E. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Coffin, Clarence Coffin, North Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Emory Hamilton, Mrs. Della Smith, Portland.
Mrs. Elizabeth H. Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davis, Virginia Davis, Stanley Davis, Jerrold Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Enman, June Enman, Naomi Enman, Bethel.

Mrs. Paulina Enman, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Enman, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Enman, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lowell, Herbert Enman, Edith Enman, Rumford.

Mrs. Edna Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McPherson, Dwight Smith, Josephine Smith, Carlos Smith, Newry.
Mr. and Mrs. Everett Smith, Stanley Smith, Elaine Smith, Alden Smith, Lawrence Smith, Mrs. Addie A. Smith, Turner Center.

Fred Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Howard, Northwest Bethel.

The Ladies' Club fair, held at Garland Chapel on Thursday afternoon of last week, was very successful. The tables were in charge of the following ladies: food, Mrs. Alice Rowe, Mrs. Barbara Lyon; candy, Mrs. Agnes Twaddle, Mrs. Eva Herrick; aprons, Mrs. Elizabeth Garey, Mrs. Maude Farwell; fancy articles, Mrs. Sadie Tuell, Mrs. Elizabeth Whitney, Mrs. L. A. Edwards; miscellaneous, Mrs. Mildred Lyon; tea table, Mrs. Hattie Hall.

Mrs. Elwyn Parlin left for New York Sunday where she will join Mr. Parlin and arrange their new home at Westfield, N. J. Rev. and Mrs. Parlin will return this week for their children who with Mrs. Parlin have been spending the summer at the home of Mr. Parlin's sister, Mrs. J. C. Anderson. Mr. Parlin has a special position with the Student Volunteer Movement of America.

MRS. ALICE C. RUSS

Mrs. Alice Cotton Russ passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. P. C. Lapham, Monday morning at about 3 o'clock. Mrs. Russ has been in failing health since last March but has been confined to her bed only about ten days in which time she has been a great sufferer.

She was born at Paris, April 14, 1884, the daughter of Thomas and Mary Hammond Cotton. When but ten years of age, after the loss of her mother she went to live with her grandparents in Woodstock, making her home in that town until about three years ago when with her husband, she came to live with her daughter, Mrs. P. C. Lapham, where she has made many warm friends, yet cherishing in memory the old home and friends for which she had such a fond affection.

She was of a quiet, retiring disposition, always looking on the bright side of life and bearing whatever came into her life with Christian patience. She was a member of the Baptist Church at Bryant Pond. When but 17 years of age she was united in marriage with Henry H. Russ of Woodstock, who passed away here two years ago. Her married life, until she came to Bethel, was passed on a farm in Woodstock.

Mr. and Mrs. Russ were the parents of four children, all of whom survive: Mrs. Mary E. Lapham, Bethel; Mrs. Stella Sessions, Abbott's Mills; Walter L. Russ, Woodstock; and Albert H. Russ, Woodstock. Besides her five grandchildren, Mrs. Hazel Fuller, Portland; Mrs. Leslie Fuller, Upton; Mrs. Bessie Downing, Mechanic Falls; Miss Irina Russ, Woodstock; Mrs. Esther Lapham Brown, Bethel; also four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock at the home of Mrs. Lapham, Rev. R. G. Datzell officiating. Interment was at the cemetery at South Woodstock.

Eighteen Bethel people attended the meeting at Pomona Grange at South Paris Saturday when National Master Taber was the speaker.

BETHEL FAIR NOTES

Bethel Fair, Sept. 4-5, 1931.

Much interest is shown in the entries in the cattle department. Fancy stock is to be shown from many fine farms in Oxford County, as well as some from Cumberland County.

The exhibition of three and five galloped horses from the Southernland Farms, Shelburne, also pony classes, hunters and jumpers, will be a novel feature.

Twenty-seven horses have already been entered in the races.

On Friday will be played a baseball game between the Rumford Pine Tree League team and the Gorham, N. H., nine. This should be a fine game. On Saturday the Bethel team will play.

On account of the big demand, additional space will be laid out for the midway.

A DEMOCRATIC INSTITUTION

The life insurance industry is one of our greatest stabilizing forces.

Providing, as it does, for the future of millions of individuals, it protects likewise the future of the nation. It is a mighty influence opposed to poverty, want, distress, and stimulates individual saving and thrift.

Fundamentally it is a cooperative business. Its assets represent the accumulated savings of that vast number of people who have policies and have joined together to create a fund for the protection of themselves and their dependents. The life insurance fund is easily the safest of all investments for persons of small and moderate means who are without facilities for investing their stock and bond issues, and who cannot afford the losses that may occur in the operation of any business.

The first autumn meeting of the V. T. U. will be held at the Methodist Parsonage next Tuesday. Mrs. G. R. Horton of South Paris will speak and all pin the white ribbon on the new members.

UNLICENSED DRIVER IN AUTO SMASH

Mrs. Grace Leary of Portsmouth, N. H., was fined $10 and costs by Judge F. E. Russell Monday morning. She was charged with operating a car without a license. The sentence was suspended.

Mrs. Leary was involved in an accident on the new road near West Bethel Saturday evening opposite the home of Ernest Lutton. She was driving a Marquette car toward Berlin, accompanied by her son, Paul Leary and a girl friend. In attempting to pass a Ford sedan going in the same direction she hit the front wheel of the Ford, causing it to overturn and throw the occupants out onto the rocks beside the road. Mrs. Clara Pathe suffered a broken collar bone and two broken ribs. With her were her son-in-law, Paul Dessano, his wife and two children of Montreal, who suffered slight cuts and bruises.

POULTRY FARMERS MUST BE SALESMEN, PHILLIPS ADVISES

"My philosophy is not to worry about the cost of success, but to give more attention to cost of failure. It is not the cost of what we do but the cost of what we do not do which hurts us."

Thus spoke A. G. Phillips, former professor of poultry husbandry at Purdue University, in addressing Maine poultrymen at Orono Tuesday. Continuing he said: "When business is difficult it is necessary that we redouble our efforts. The farmer must give service to the consuming public if he expects to make a dollar out of him. We are all primarily interested in the dollar. Let me illustrate what I mean. Draw one perpendicular line upon a sheet of paper and let it represent the farmer. Draw another perpendicular line parallel with it and let that represent the consumer. Two parallel lines never meet, and the farmer and consumer will never get together with the above illustration. But if we will take the letter 'S' and put it on top of the two perpendicular lines, we make the dollar sign. 'S' represents the service given and it ties the farmer and consumer together, which makes dollars for both."

"Consider the farmer to be a business man. If he is not, there is little chance for his success. Business has a number of definitions, but certainly we can accept one or two. Business is the Science of Service; The Vital Force in Business is the Honest Desire to Serve. Some people say that knowledge is power, but I believe that it is only a power when it is used knowledge. E. St. Elmo Lewis says, 'You generally hear that what a man doesn't know doesn't hurt him, but in business what a man doesn't know does hurt.' Before anything is acquired it must be practiced. This is certainly true of knowledge, and we must apply the knowledge to the task at hand so as to obtain the solution of the problem we are facing."

"Since production and selling go together, the poultry farmer must be a salesman. There are a lot of definitions of selling, but certainly in marketing a product we must appeal to the other man's point of view, not of our own. We do not appeal to his altruism but to his selfishness. We must make it very plain to the purchaser that it is a good thing for him to do what we ask of him. Selling is a matter of simply psychology. You must paint a picture attractive to the prospect and then show him how he can fit into that picture advantageously to himself."

"There are a number of things which cause all of us in business to fail or become unsuccessful. One of the most important is lack of resourcefulness, and another one equally important is that of balancing will power with judgment. As Casson says, 'When a horse balks, the balk is in his head. He moves on when he thinks he will.' Our biggest business problem is a mental one. Fear defeats more business enterprises and more people than anything else. If we do not believe it can be done, we shouldn't try it. If we are not first sold on a proposition, we cannot convince anyone else. Knowledge may be power, but it is a useless possession without will power."

Out of town relatives and friends present at the funeral of Mrs. Alice Russ Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Russ, daughter Irina, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Russ, Bryant Pond; Mr. and Mrs. Asa Sessions, Abbott's Mills; Mrs. Clara Fuller, Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Fuller, Upton; Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Downing, Mechanic Falls; Mrs. George Whitman, Bryant Pond; Mrs. Lillian Chase, Mrs. Gertrude Dore, Abbott's Mills; Colleen Abbott, Clarence Smith, Walter Ordway, George Cushman, Bryant Pond.

SIKORSKY AMPHIBIAN PLANE BRINGS SHELL MANAGERS TO BETHEL MONDAY

Last Monday afternoon a Sikorsky plane, bearing the colors of the Shell company and piloted by Maj. R. G. Ervin of the Army Reserve Corps, landed on the field belonging to F. L. Edwards and E. E. Bennett. Traveling in the plane besides Maj. Ervin and mechanic were M. G. Perkins, Branch Manager for the State of Maine, E. E. Overton, Bulk Sales Manager, officials of the Shell organization.

While here they visited Irving L. Carver, distributor for Shell products in this County as well as parts of Cumberland and Franklin Counties.

Their itinerary includes Shell distributors and dealers they are stopping at the following places: Skowhegan, Rockland, Bethel, Bangor and Presque Isle; and then to Quebec and Montreal, P. Q., Ottawa, Ont., Rochester and Buffalo, N. Y. The territory covered by this plane extends west as far as Buffalo, N. Y., and south to Alabama, the present limit of the Shell Eastern Petroleum division.

The plane is a Sikorsky S-39 Amphibian, powered with a Pratt & Whitney Wasp Jr. 300 horsepower radial motor. It carries four passengers, besides the pilot. It has been in use by the company's officials since last November, during which time it has traveled 15,000 miles and carried 3,500 passengers. Major Ervin was in the Army 12 years, including service in the World War, and is a pilot. The party left for Bangor early Tuesday afternoon.

LAKEWOOD PRESENTS THE ROYAL FAMILY

When "The Royal Family" is presented by the Lakewood Players at Lakewood, starting next Monday night, August 24th, theatregoers will have opportunity to watch one of the most successful plays of the last few years.

"The Royal Family" ran for an entire season in New York and it has been praised by everyone as one of the wit, wit and most delightful of comedy-dramas. It was written by George S. Kaufman, one of our foremost playwrights and co-author of such hits as "Dulcy," "Once In A Lifetime," "June Moon," "Beggar On Horseback" and "The T. C." and by Edna Ferber, the celebrated novelist who wrote "Show Boat" and "So Big."

In "The Royal Family" the playwrights show the home life of a famous theatrical household. Whether or not the story is based on the Barrymores is a matter of debate. The playwrights' strenuous denial. The Cavendishes live in a duplex apartment in the East Fifties and they stand together, united against the world although they have their own internal dissensions. The head of the household is Fanny Cavendish, the grandmother, a famous star in her day and still popular with audiences. Her daughter, Julie Cavendish, is the reigning Broadway star while her son, Tony, is the leader of the picture stars.

There is another daughter, Kitty, who has married Herbert Dean, an actor. There also is Gwen, Julie's daughter, who decides she prefers marriage with the good looking Stewart to a career on the stage. Julie also is loved by Gilbert Marshall who wants her to give up the stage. Julie also is loved by Gilbert who with one excuse or another, into this already excited household comes Tony, fleeing from the wife of a Hollywood actor, ready to break his picture contract and preparing to sail for Europe. He brings an East Indian servant with him and also a trainer. The result is a play that is colorful, turbulent, glamorous and exciting. Jealous of their high position in their profession, and loyal to each other in all trying circumstances, the Cavendishes form a remarkable group of people as well as providing fine opportunities for acting on the part of the players.

Lester Wood is cooking at Mrs. Eli Stearns' boarding house.

Harry Eldredge of Boston and Miss Martha Slinian of Watthan returned to their homes Wednesday after a few days visit with the former's daughter, Mrs. Helen Berry, and son, Earl Eldredge.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown and family were in Grafton Sunday. Arthur Herriek visited his daughter, Barbara at Richardson Lake Friday. Mr. and Mrs. A. Van Den Kerckhoven were in Montreal over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Merrill and daughter Beatrice were in Glenad recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel Smith, nee Rath Brown, are taking an auto trip to Detroit, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Barker of Boston are spending two weeks with his brother, Philip Barker.

Phyllis Eldredge, who has been visiting relatives at New Gloucester, returned home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Merrill, Miss Harriet Merrill and F. B. Merrill were in Lewiston Saturday.

Lucia Van Den Kerckhoven was the guest of friends at MacFarland's Cove, South Bristol, last week.

Fred Bartlett returned from South Portland last week Thursday where he had been visiting relatives.

Miss Alfreda Wheeler returned from Lewiston Friday where she has been attending Bates Summer School.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Sanderson of New York City called on his nephew, Charles Merrill, and family recently. Mr. and Mrs. Roger Foster and children of Newry were guests of his brother, Enoch Foster, Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Austin and son Maynard are on a trip to Hay City, Mich., where they will visit their son Charles.

Ervin W. Tate, shop superintendent of Fay & Scott at Dexter, and Mrs. Tate were in town on Wednesday of last week.

Zenas Merrill left Wednesday for New York where he will visit his brothers. He was accompanied by his aunt, Mrs. Mary Mills, and cousin, Mrs. Ada Mills.

Mrs. O. G. King and daughter Elizabeth of Norridgewock are with Mrs. King's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Butts. They will remain here this winter.

Mrs. Jennie Coffin of Worcester, Mass., and son, Frank Coffin, of Haverhill, Md., who have been in town for a few days, returned to Worcester Wednesday, taking with them Mrs. Coffin's goods which have been stored at Mrs. Austin Jodrey's for some time.

Mighty Mountains

Darjeeling, With Peaks of the Himalayas in the Background.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

MOUNTS Kamet and Kinchinjunga in the Himalayas have taken the place of Mount Everest this summer in the interest of the world's mountain climbers. Mount Kamet, 25,415 feet high, was successfully scaled by a British party on June 21. Kinchinjunga, 27,515 feet high, is now being attacked by a party of Germans.

Heretofore, Mount Kamet has seldom been heard of when the earth's highest peaks are being discussed, but nevertheless it is one of the select little group of Asiatic peaks that push up further above sea level than mountains in any other part of the earth. Although it ranks fifth among the amazing group of mountain giants that extend along the Himalayan chain and into China, it is not greatly surpassed in height by any of its fellows except Everest, 29,002 feet high; Goodwin Austen, 25,270; Kinchinjunga, 27,515; Dhaulagiri, 26,828; and Gauri T. An, 25,265. All of these superlatives among mountains are in Nepal except Goodwin Austen, which is in northern Kashmir.

The peak of Mount Kamet is situated just a stone's throw south of the Tibetan border, in the United Provinces of India. Near it is Nanda Devi, which tops it by less than 200 feet. These comparisons tell down to the fact that Kamet is the third highest mountain in the British empire and by virtue of this fact it was considered well worth a serious attack by mountain climbers.

While Mount Everest and Kinchinjunga are near Darjeeling, hill capital of Bengal, Mount Kamet is 600 miles to the northwest near Simla, hill capital of India. It lies in the Garhwal district of the United Provinces, 120 miles due east of Simla near the eighth meridian of longitude. This area came into British possession in 1814 as a result of the Gurka war (with Nepal). This region consists of a maze of high peaks with extremely deep valleys winding among them. The valleys and lower slopes are heavily wooded.

How Mount Kamet is Reached.
The railroad used in expeditions to Mount Kamet is at Kathgodam, in the United Provinces, at the southern edge of the Himalayan foothills. From there travel is overland through valleys and up steep slopes to Jankhel, a hill village considerable in location to Simla. From Jankhel the way leads over rough country and across a number of deep river gorges, to the village of Nili at 12,000 feet altitude. From this point both yaks and coolie carriers are used.

Although numerous attempts to scale Mount Kamet have been made since 1855, no one succeeded in reaching the summit until this summer. The latest expedition prior to the one that has just scaled the peak was led in 1920 by Dr. A. M. Kellas. He reached an altitude of 23,000 feet, but had to turn back because his native assistants were suffering from mountain sickness.

On the slopes of Mount Kamet is one of the chief head-water glaciers of the Ganges river. Kinchinjunga is bigger game for the mountain climber than Kamet, both because of its extreme height and the steepness of its slopes. It is the third highest mountain in the world, reaching upward five and one-third miles above sea level.

Of the three highest peaks—Everest, Goodwin Austen, and Kinchinjunga—the latter is most inaccessible. It lies 45 miles north of Darjeeling in an air line, but the road that one must travel across canyons, over ridges and around intervening peaks, is much longer.

Darjeeling has been headquarters for the several expeditions that have tried unsuccessfully to scale Kinchinjunga in past years. Like Simla, 100 miles farther west, and Brimang in Kashmir, Darjeeling is a good spot for the European who must spend the hot period in India. But it is more than a cool retreat; it is a watchful observation post, when the clouds permit, for the mightiest mountain scenery that the world affords, and the outstanding sight to the northward, across deep canyons and beyond the after tier of foothills, is the mighty Kinchinjunga, buttressed by half a dozen peaks from 20,000 to 24,000 feet in altitude.

Darjeeling stands on a sort of stage before and above which sweep the amphitheater slopes of Himalayan foothills that rise about 7,000 feet from the Belgian plains. On the side toward the mountains the ridge drops away for approximately 3,000 feet forming what might, in American terminology, be called "the Grand Canyon of the Range," but whose heavily forested slopes and tropically luxuriant floor earns in India the more poetic name of "Valley of Ranjit."

It is across this titanic valley and beyond over ridges of foothills, lower than that on which Darjeeling sits, that one looks to mighty Kinchinjunga. The eye therefore sees a rise of approximately 7,000 feet, a range of altitude to be seen in few if any other places in the world, since most of the highest mountains rise from lofty plateaus.

Darjeeling on the Foothills.

Darjeeling has characteristics unlike those of most towns. It can hardly be said to have streets. Most of the buildings face on paths or walks which run along the main ridge and out onto its minor spurs, or work their way by serpentine routes to other paths that cling to the steep sides of the slopes. Steps, too, serve in place of roads, connecting terraces that rise one above the other. One of the few carriage roads is a driveway that skirts the lower end of the main ridge and leads below to the suburb Lebong and its barracks for British soldiers.

The villas, bungalows, shops, government buildings, hospitals, churches, schools, barracks and native huts that jangle up Darjeeling and its suburb form pendant communities, like giant saddle-bags thrown over the ridge. Dwellings are scattered down the slopes for a thousand feet, the ground floors of one tier on a level with the roofs of the next tier below. If one must ever much space in Darjeeling, he rides on pony back or is carried in a litter by four servants.

The center of Darjeeling is Observatory Hill, a knoll on the crest of the ridge. Topping the knoll is a Buddhist monument and surrounding it is a small forest of shrubs from which prayer flags flutter their clouds. From the benches near the clouds, one may sit, when mist and clouds do not interfere, and take advantage of Darjeeling's best view of mighty Kinchinjunga and its fellows. But often the view is fruitless. It is only for relatively brief periods during spring and early winter that one may be sure of long, uninterrupted views of the towering granite and ice walls and snowy slopes to the north.

Looking Across to the Peaks.

Standing on the Darjeeling ridge when the air is free of mists, the observer first looks down, deep down 6,000 feet into a river gorge choked with tropical jungle. Then his eyes rise to the rice fields reflecting the blue sky and the tea plantations, and up to the Temperate zone trees, then to the pine forests crowning lower mountains. The observer perceives over half a dozen intervening ridges into the dark, mysterious depths of valleys. Then he sees the bare uplands above the tree line and finally the beginning of the snows. Long white glaciers drape the mountain mass whose two-pronged peak half fills the sky.

The world seems to be walled on the north. There is no such thing as a horizon; Kinchinjunga closes the view like an exquisite screen.

The vertical height is to the length, at this point of vantage as one is in sight; that is, as a tree 60 feet high appears when viewed at the distance of one average city block.

In terms of familiar American views, Kinchinjunga, seen from Darjeeling, is like the Washington monument as it appears from the west veranda of the Capitol or the Woolworth building as seen from the Jersey shore.

Darjeeling well earns its popularity as a summer resort. While on the steamy plains of Bengal a few miles away, the mercury climbs in summer above 100 degrees Fahrenheit, it seldom tops 75 degrees at Darjeeling; and in winter 30 degrees marks the low point of the temperature range. The unpleasant feature of the weather is furnished by the heavy rains. Ten feet of water fall each year, and some of the storms are violent.

WEST PARIS

Ten young men of West Paris went to the French coast on a deep sea fishing trip and all came home with a smile broad enough to be a grin. They left West Paris at three o'clock in the morning and returned about four o'clock in the afternoon with about 1,000 pounds of fish. Everyone had a good catch. The largest fish caught weighed 40 pounds and Earle Bane was the lucky fisherman. Lewis Mann caught a 27 pound pollock. Those in the party were Earle Bane, George Plavich, Lewis Mann, Eugene Penley, Joe Penley, Floyd Dean, Albert Scribner, Windsor Abbott, Wesley Oliver Truman Emery.

Miss Florence Barker and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Barker from Woodcliff, N. J., are spending two weeks vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Inman. Mrs. Gertrude Stuart of Auburn is spending a few days also.

Mrs. Beale Shiro of Portland and Walter Peaslee of Exeter, N. H., have been recent guests at M. E. Richardson's.

Mrs. Juliette F. Curtis was given a farewell party at the home of Mrs. Fred R. Penley by Onward Rebekah Lodge Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Curtis was presented with a sum of money from the lodge by Mrs. Herbert E. Hill, noble grand of the lodge, who spoke very appreciatively of Mrs. Curtis as member of the lodge, neighbor and citizen. Mrs. Curtis is soon to go to the Rehoboth home at Auburn. Being past 80 years of age, with no near relatives, Mrs. Curtis decided on removing to the home. She is the longest time resident of the village, a member of the Good Will Society, an attendant of the Universalist Church, charter member of Onward Rebekah Lodge and Granite Chapter, O. E. S. Many friends are wishing happiness and contentment in her new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence T. Stearns entertained at a farewell party Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. Curtis. Mrs. H. B. Gilbert of Albion, N. Y., who has been guests at Snow Falls Inn, daily refreshment, were served at the close of a most delightful evening.

Snow Falls Inn is having the most successful season and largest number of guests since its opening.

Miss Margaret Tuell, nurse at Freeport hospital, was a guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Adney H. Tuell, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collett and Patricia have moved from the Bowker house at Trap Corner to George L. Jackson's rent on High Street.

Miss Carlene Gammon of Norway has returned home after a week's visit with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Howard McKee.

Miss Ruth Tucker is slightly improved from her recent illness.

Miss Ella Curtis is visiting her cousin, Mrs. W. F. Hawker, in Portland.

Robert and Gordon Lally of Portland underwent surgery at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Jordan, Wednesday, for the removal of tonsils and adenoids, and are making good recovery.

Mrs. Lizzie Cunningham of Dorchester, Mass., arrived Thursday and is the guest of her brother, D. H. Fitch, and family.

The Misses Edith, Irene and Jane Foster of Naugatuck, Conn., are guests of their niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley I. Perham, Pioneer Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith and son Junior from Brighton, Mass., spent the week end at John Noyes'. Mrs. Smith is a granddaughter of Mrs. Ada Bennett, who cares for her mother, Mrs. Frances Noyes, who is now in her 103d year.

Mrs. Bartlett of Bethel has been a recent caller at John Noyes'.

Mrs. Martha E. Kendall is the guest of her sister and husband, Rev. and Mrs. N. H. Pearson, at Randolph.

GREAT GARDEN FOR U. S.-CANADA BORDER

Plan Living Monument to Honor Long Friendship.

Toronto, Ont.—The project of an international peace garden on the boundary line between United States and Canada is proceeding. Before very long it will be possible for the sponsor to announce the site of this monument to the long amity of the two nations.

Then, according to H. J. Moore of Kingston, Ont., who conceived the idea and is now international secretary of the scheme, the drive for funds will be on in earnest. Funds have been coming in, although no special effort has been made to induce them. These have been spontaneous gifts from people who have, either individually or in groups, been seized by the graphic beauty of the plan to make a boundary garden.

Gets Big Support.

It was August, 1929, when Mr. Moore first outlined the idea to the National Association of Gardeners of America at their annual convention in Toronto. It was enthusiastically endorsed and received such support that today 56 national, state and provincial organizations have put their pledges behind it.

Recently a wave of support has come from the Middle West and South, particularly from Manitoba, the Dakotas, Kansas, Nebraska and Texas. These are states on the great Canadian-to-United States highway, which will eventually run from Churchill on Hudson bay, down through Canada, the United States, Mexico, and Central America to Cape Horn. It will be, it is claimed, the world's greatest highway and will make it possible to motor from the sub-Arctic of Canada through the tropics to the southern tip of the continent.

The road now runs from Bowman and Swan River, Manitoba, across the boundary and down through the United States to Mexico City. It is not yet a completed highway through-out.

Site Wins Favor.

The reason for the recent strong wave of support from regions on the Canada-to-United States highway is evident from the fact that the road runs through an area that is being considered as a possible site for the International Peace garden. This area is the mountainous, on the boundary between Manitoba and North Dakota, east of the few heights of land in the west prairies.

Geographically this area could not have been more ideally located for its purpose. It is on this main north-south highway of the continent and on the boundary line almost exactly midway between New York and Vancouver.

It is, in fact, almost at the exact geographical center of the North American continent.

Ex-Passenger Ship

Runs Michigan Mill

Menominee, Mich.—Once a proud freight and passenger carrier on the Great Lakes, the steamer Pere Marquette No. 6 is now operating a saw mill.

Tom Finn, owner of the vessel, also controls the Sawyer Goodman Lumber company. The company's boilers were cut this spring and since the mill was going to run only a few months it was deemed inadvisable to replace them.

So Finn backed the old Pere Marquette No. 6 into a slip alongside his mill, hooked up the boat's boilers with the mill's engines and had plenty of steam.

Butter Is $6 a Pound

Under Rule of Soviets

London.—S. Koldafsky, who has just returned from a mission in Russia on behalf of the British Federation of Jewish Relief Organizations, reports the following price list for food in Moscow: Milk, 42 cents a pint; eggs, 35 cents each; butter $6.24 a pound; oranges, $2 each.

Chocolate, coffee, cocoa and lemons can only be obtained through food bootleggers and at prohibitive prices. Only workers possessing "working cards" can obtain tea, and then only a quarter of a pound per week is allowed for four.

Laws Allows Horse

One Bite, One Kick

Los Angeles.—Following the old rule that a dog is entitled to one bite, a court here went a step further and ruled that a horse cannot be denied a single nibble, or for that matter, one kick—but not both.

Harry Goldstein, a dealer in cast-off articles, sought $725 from Frank Martin, operator of a riding stable, charging that a horse he had rented from Martin had attempted to bite his hand.

The judge ruled that Goldstein must show that Martin's horse was of a habitual vicious nature. The junk dealer couldn't prove that his horse had previously bitten or kicked, and lost the suit.

MAINE POULTRY IMPROVEMENT.

At a recent poultry tour in Oxford County conducted by the Adult Poultry Clubs of Mexico, Hiram and Norway under the direction of County Agent Ridley, the subject of starting an Oxford County unit of the M. P. I. Assn. was discussed. Mr. Warren Chaborn, a director of the State Association and president of the Cumberland County unit, outlined the aims of the association and mentioned some of the accomplishments to date; the most outstanding of these being the day poultry school held at Orono this week.

Nearly 75 people attended the tour many agreed that an Association was needed.

A committee of six was appointed by nomination during the noon hour. This committee will meet later and decide on a plan of solicitation to enroll membership in the Association. The committee as appointed is made up: Carroll DeCoster, Norway; Chester M. Merrill, So. Paris; Robert D. Hastings, East Bethel; Alfred J. Dyer, Norway; and Ralph Hill, Fryeburg.

Only fifteen members are needed to start a county unit but the committee expects to get many more than that. Actual calls of poultrymen will probably be necessary to secure the enrollment.

How to Better Poor Posture

Bodily posture is just as important as social poise to the really attractive woman. Poor posture will spoil the effect of the most expensive gown, but if posture is poor, it's easy to improve it. Kathleen Howard writes in Harper's Bazaar.

"Here is one way to do it," she writes. "Stand in front of your mirror, without your clothes, and turn sideways. You may see reflected a bad case of gynecomastia. If you do, put one hand below your waist on your back and put the other in front, on your abdomen. Then roll the tip of your spine in and out, at the same time keeping your head well up. It really works."

Chinchilla Rabbits

Many theories have been advanced as to the origin of the chinchilla rabbit. The domestic rabbits now being produced for food and for fur purposes came from the European hare. Some breeders maintain that the chinchilla rabbit originated by crossing the french silver with the so-called belgian hare, combining the silver blue color of the silver with the distinct color rings found in the fur of the belgian.

Father of Observatory
The entire fund for the construction of Lick Observatory was given by James Lick, an American philanthropist, who was born at Frederickburg, Pa., in 1794. Formerly a piano manufacturer in Philadelphia, Buenos Aires, Valparaiso and elsewhere, he settled in California in 1847, invested in real estate and made a fortune. In 1871 he placed $200,000 in the hands of seven trustees to be devoted to certain specified public and charitable uses. Among his principal bequests were those to the University of California for the erection of an observatory and purchase of a telescope superior and larger than any constructed, for which $700,000 was given.

Lawrence Grover and family of Hallowell, Mass., are staying at their camp here.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Merrill of So. Waterford were Sunday callers in town.

Love and Live

People in love live longer, and better. Dr. Joseph Oldfield, wife's son, told the audience of the annual meeting of the Lady Margaret hospital.

And the other extreme, according to Doctor Oldfield, is "slow murder," the doctor said.

Reported causes of being in love, according to Doctor Oldfield, are:

Better digestion.
Glossier skin and smoother hair.

Poor tastes better.

"When a woman starts chasing her husband," he said, "she is committing slow murder and at the same time taking the first step toward becoming a hag, ugly and old. When a woman goes 'green with jealousy' she is strangling her hepatic duct."

Victorians Weren't So Prim

The Victorians, who are accused of prudishness, had much all-around extravagance. George Meredith was no puritan; indeed, more so. Diana of the Crossways seemed to sit not so much at the crossroads as in the heart of the labyrinth; and the Ecceit jugged much more deceptively than Juggling Jerry.

Some of Browning's friends complained that he was cryptic, not only in prose, but in private correspondence. G. K. Chesterton in the Illustrated London News.
